

MONDAY EVENING, NOV. 21, 1904.

From Washington.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.

Governor Odell left this morning for New York after a brief rest at Old Point Comfort. He reached Washington last evening, and had time for a conference with President Roosevelt at the White House. When asked this morning what had been discussed, he said he was not at liberty to tell, but admitted the selection of a postmaster for New York City had occupied a part of the time. "The new postmaster will probably not be named before the meeting of Congress," he said. "I will not say whether or not I have a candidate. Capt. Norton Goddard is very earnest in his support of Marcus Marks for the office. I believe there are other candidates." "Will you be a candidate for the Senate to succeed Senator Dewey?" Governor Odell was asked. "I am not anxious for the six years of hard work," replied the Governor. "It would mean that, and public office involves much work and thankless work at that."

Henry Bleeker, local inspector of steam vessels at Grand Haven, Mich., and James W. Nicholson, local inspector of steam boilers at Norfolk, Va., were dismissed from the service by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor today. The charge against Bleeker was that he inspected a small steam yacht, the Julia, at Spring Lake, Michigan, although she was aground, partly filled with water, and in no sense a proper object of inspection. In connection with this case the department calls attention to the report of the Slocum commission, which denounces as vicious the present salary system, which makes the salary of an inspector dependent upon the number of vessels he inspects and passes. Nicholson was discharged for excessive use of intoxicants. He was recently warned and asked to submit his undated resignation. He did better after that and his resignation was returned to him. He celebrated this event in such a manner that the supervising inspector deemed it well to recommend his dismissal.

In accordance with the instructions of the House at the last session of Congress, additional testimony is being taken in the case of Judge Charles Swayne, of the Florida federal court, whose impeachment had been recommended by a majority of the House committee on the judiciary. A subcommittee of that committee met this morning at the Capitol and first examined Charles T. Forbes, who was a clerk in the general land office and who had been sent to Florida to look into the matter of certain timber depletions. His testimony was unfavorable to Judge Swayne.

The following official statement was given out at the White House this morning: "Any statement that the President is taking any part in the Missouri senatorial contest, directly or indirectly, for or against any candidate, has no foundation in fact. The President will not interfere in the slightest degree in the contest."

Acting First Assistant Postmaster-General John J. Howley made the annual report for his bureau to Postmaster-General Wynne today. A recommendation was made to relieve the department of furnishing postoffice employees for duty on local civil service boards and place such clerks on the rolls of the Civil Service Commission. Salaries aggregated $22,600 are paid by the department to clerks who devote all their time to civil service matters. Complaint of bonded assistant postmasters' clerks that bonds cannot be terminated during term of office leads to the recommendation that a law be passed permitting this so that clerks may take advantage of lower salary rates in giving new bonds. During the fiscal year many cases were unearthed in which postmasters padded the receipts of their offices by abnormal sales of stamps so as to raise the office grade and obtain increase of salaries. Salaries in forty offices were reduced and several offices relegated to lower class. Orders have been issued requiring postmasters to make report of heavy sales of stamps intended for use in other jurisdictions, such sales not to be considered in classifying the local office. Money order business has shown a normal increase and international exchange is established with fifty foreign countries.

President Roosevelt held a conference this morning with a number of business men and State officials who urged him to assist them in securing the passage of a law that would restore to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power it formerly held to regulate the freight rates of the country. The Supreme Court declared, after the commission had been in practical control of the adjustment of freight rates for a decade, that the body had no authority to act under the law. Nothing definite was accomplished.

Under the call of the Comptroller of the Currency for the condition of National Banks at the close of business November 10, the 42 banks of New York City report a capital stock of $106,500,000; surplus $78,857,500; individual deposits $721,101,887; bonds borrowed $15,271,000; loans and discounts $788,156,445; and lawful money in reserve $257,524,315.27; resources and liabilities $1,606,368,988.94; percentage on legal reserve to deposits 26.52; percentage to deposits of cash on hand redemption fund and due from reserve agents 26.52.

It was officially announced at the White House today that President Roosevelt would attend the reunion of the Rough Riders at San Antonio, Texas, next May. He will make only one speech on the trip and that will be at the reunion.

Probable retirement of Ambassador to England Choate and the appointment of Whitelaw Reid as his successor is again rumored.

There was another large crowd at the Benning races today and the weather and track were all that could be desired.

Says Doctor Stole Wife's Love.

A suit for $7,000 damages was entered in the Prothonotary's office in New York City, Friday, by W. H. Runkle against Dr. Z. C. Myers, a well-known physician, in which the plaintiff charges the defendant with alienating the affections of his wife. At the same time a suit for libel for damages to the extent of $7,000 was brought by Ada Lauer against Ada V. Runkle. No statements were made, but the summonses are returnable the first Monday in December.

The interstate commerce commission began its hearings in Philadelphia this morning to consider the question of railroad rate differentials, the maintenance of which is of vital importance to the transportation and business interest of Philadelphia and Baltimore.

News of the Day.

Yale defeated Harvard 12 to 0 in the football game at New Haven, Conn., Saturday.

Mrs. Leopold Damrosch, mother of the famous musical conductor, died in New York Saturday.

The admission at the Exposition last week totaled 552,019, making 17,617,905 persons who have attended since April 30.

President Roosevelt has offered Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, a place either on the Canal Commission or Interstate Commerce Commission.

The mystery of the theft of $30,000 from the Forepaugh & Sells' Circus ticket wagon at Tarboro, N. C., Saturday, is still unsolved and there is no clue to the robbers.

Mr. Henry G. Davis likes Washington and is going to live there this winter despite the fact that he will not hold an official position. He is going to live on Massachusetts avenue.

Dr. Seth S. Ulrich, a well-known physician in Baltimore and a major in the Fourth Regiment, Maryland National Guard, died very suddenly yesterday of neuralgia of the heart.

Fire caused a loss yesterday in the central part of Cincinnati approximating $700,000. It started about noon in an abandoned building in the rear of the Painsford Stationery Company.

The steamer Sicilian Prince, of the Prince Line, was yesterday stranded on the Long Island shore. There were 600 Italian steerage passengers and 12 cabin passengers on board. It is expected that the vessel will be floated today.

Fire broke out during a performance at Speirs' Opera House, Westbrook, Me., Saturday night, and before it could be controlled the building was gutted. The flames shut off escape by way of the main entrance, but an exit was found at the rear for the 200 people present. Several people were injured, but none, it is thought, dangerously.

William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Kansas Gazette, and a well-known Kansas author, was horsewhipped by Mrs. Etta Moffatt, a divorced woman, in front of his office Thursday afternoon. The story of the affair was suppressed by White and his friends. The Gazette had contained articles intimating that Mrs. Moffatt was guilty of infidelity.

A Japanese shell has exploded a Russian magazine at Port Arthur and the fighting continues there. The Japanese are hurling among the Russian trenches receptacles which burst, releasing a foul gas which causes the soldiers to faint, but does not kill. Along the Shakh river General Kurapatkin is trying to lead Marshal Oyama into taking the aggressive.

A dispatch from Denver, Col., says that three deaths, including her own, are charged to Elsie Gesterling, by the friends of C. A. Parker, vice president of the Pere Marquette Railway, and his son. From a sanguine, happy man who abhorred suicide she converted the elder Parker into a morose individual who spoke lightly of death. The liaison extended over eighteen months in Denver.

Shot dead in an automobile by bank robbers, whose plot the victim of the tragedy had discovered and whose plans he had frustrated, is one explanation of the mysterious death of William Tate, a chauffeur, whose corpse and machine were found on a lonely road near Chicago, Saturday. The idea is that two men who hired the automobile Friday night were bank robbers and contemplated a raid on a bank in some small town.

The Missouri State building at the World's Fair was destroyed by fire early Saturday evening, resulting from the explosion of a hot water heater in the basement. Instantly the flames shot up through the rotunda, and the north wing and cupola were a solid mass of flames within ten minutes after the explosion. The building cost $145,000 and in it were $75,000 worth of furnishings, the most valuable of which were portraits of all former Missouri governors and Supreme Court Judges. The most valuable of the paintings and books were saved from the fire that destroyed the Missouri Building at the World's Fair and the loss will be only about $20,000. One fireman was killed.

Hugh S. Thompson, former governor of South Carolina, died at his residence in New York, last night. He was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1836. In recent years he was controller of the New York Life Insurance Company.

After four years as given, during which time he was re-elected once, he resigned to become Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Department under President Cleveland. Mr. Thompson's next office was that of democratic member of the Civil Service Commission, to which he was appointed in 1889. Mr. Thompson leaves a widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Clarkson, sister of Dr. H. M. Clarkson, now of Haymarket, Va., and to whom he was married April 6, 1858. Five sons and two daughters survive.

Cardinal Gibbons, President Roosevelt and Commissioner Macfarland were the speakers at the open-air celebration at St. Patrick's Church, in Washington, yesterday evening, on the occasion of the formal dedication of the new parochial buildings. The church also celebrated its one hundred and tenth anniversary. In his speech the President advocated high class children and said he believed in lots of them and of the best kind. He also spoke of the ideal citizen and said: "We have grown to accept it as an axiomatic truth of our American life that a man is to be treated on his worth as a man, without regard to the accidents of his position; that this is not a government designed to favor the rich man as such, or the poor man as such, but it is designed to favor every man, rich or poor, if he is a decent man who acts fairly by his fellows."

Cardinal Gibbons, head of the Catholic Church in America, yesterday, in accordance with an understanding reached at the recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Catholic University, made public a circular letter, which he had sent to the Catholic hierarchy of the country concerning the financial affairs of the university, thanking them and their dioceses for contributions in aid of the university which recently suffered severe financial loss by the failure of Thomas Waggaman its treasurer. The Cardinal announced that 76 dioceses contributed $105,051 in response to the call made by the university trustees. Undismayed by difficulties he admits that the present income of the university, however, insufficient for its work pending adjustment of the claims now in litigation—sympathy and generous corporation is needed.

Virginia News.

Mrs. E. R. Nuckolls, wife of the editor of the Colonial Beach Progress, died at Colonial Beach Saturday.

Thos. H. Spence and John Shockey, both well-known citizens of Frederick county, died on Saturday night.

Frank Sprouse and Archie Pelgier, alias Archie Moring, escaped from the county jail at Staunton Friday evening.

The Norfolk Library, containing 15,000 volumes, will be opened today in a beautiful building, which cost $50,000 donated by Andrew Carnegie.

A movement is on foot to place two bronze tablets in the rotunda of the University of Virginia to commemorate the students who fought in the Confederate army.

Mrs. Langhorne Putney, sister-in-law of Stephen Putney, jr., of Richmond, who is mysteriously missing in St. Louis, believes he has neither been killed nor injured, but has been spirited away by a certain mysterious woman.

Miss Gertie Shelley, 22 years old, daughter of William Shelley, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of her 12-year-old brother, Herbert Shelley, at her father's home, at Aylett's, Friday.

Col. John S. Mosby, in a letter to a Boston inquirer, denies some of the stories told about him concerning his cruel conduct toward prisoners of war, and he cites letters of friendship from men who had been his prisoners.

City Auditor Edward J. Warren, an aged official, became involved in a fight with Samuel F. Shield, a member of the city democratic committee, on Broad street, Richmond, Saturday afternoon. The affray resulted in the arrest of the two men.

Between 1:30 and 2 o'clock Sunday morning, fire practically destroyed the eastern and central wings of that portion of the Norfolk City Market used for the sale of fish, vegetables and poultry. A large stock of chickens and turkeys and produce was cremated.

Mrs. Mary E. Birkby, wife of Charles T. Birkby, a prominent merchant of Leesburg, died Friday at the Church House and Infirmary, in Baltimore, Md., from a complication of diseases. She was fifty-six years of age. Her husband and several brothers and sisters survive. She was a daughter of the late Thomas S. Shaffer, of Baltimore.

Information has just been received in Hays of the supposed murder of Robert Hays, the sixteen-year-old son of R. C. Hays, who lives near Woodville, Rappahannock county. Young Hays, a few mornings ago, went to his rabbit traps some distance from his home, and in about an hour returned, his face and head having been seriously injured in some mysterious manner. The young man was unable to give any account of his condition and died the same night.

The formal presentation to the University of Virginia of the library of the late Dr. Thomas Randolph Price, formerly professor of Greek in that institution, took place Saturday evening in the rotunda of the university. President Alderman presented and introduced Prof. Basil L. Gildesleeve, of Johns Hopkins University, who made the presentation speech. The gift was accepted on behalf of the university authorities by Col. W. Gordon McCabe, of Richmond. The library contains about 4,000 volumes.

A movement to raise an endowment fund for the historic University of Virginia has been organized under the direction of an advisory council of a hundred or more prominent men representing all parts of the United States. This famous school having been founded by Thomas Jefferson, the fund, which it is hoped will eventually amount to $2,000,000, will be named "The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Fund." Among those in the council are ex-President Cleveland, Chief Justice Fuller, Elihu Root, Secretary Taft, Admiral Dewey, Robert T. Lincoln, St. Clair McKelway, Cardinal Gibbons, Richard Olney and Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. President Roosevelt is interested in the project and has indorsed it in a letter to Thomas Nelson Page, president of the Alumni Association of the university.

Southern Methodists.

The Southern Methodist Episcopal Conference at Lynchburg Saturday decided to meet in Danville, in November, 1905.

The committee on conference rejections recommended twenty-three ministers to the superannuated relation.

The report of the trustees of the Virginia Conference Orphanage was read and adopted. The report states that during the year the arcades connecting the cottages with the administration building have been erected at a cost of $1,882. This gives room for 100 children. But more beds and a larger dining-room and kitchen are needed before the orphanage can care for more than 75 children. At present it has 65.

Yesterday morning Bishop Wilson preached at Centenary Church and ordained deacons. Bishop Granberry preached at Court Street and Bishop Coke Smith at Memorial Church.

Senator Martin.

Senator Martin is registered at Murphy's Hotel, having come up from Newport News, where he has been with the subcommittee on merchant marine, of which he is chairman. The senator seemed in the best of spirits and was surrounded in the lobby during the evening by a number of friends and supporters. Senator Martin received a number of Richmond politicians during the evening and his presence here seemed to stimulate his lieutenants' greater activity in his cause. Some of those who favor his return to the Senate were proclaiming him an easy winner around the lobbies, and did not seem disposed to concede that Governor Montague would be a serious factor in the fight. The Governor's friends, however, were pointing to their favorite's past record, and saying that they were satisfied with the outlook.—[Richmond Times Dispatch.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdstown, W. V., says: "I had a severe attack of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It is infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It is guaranteed by E. S. Leachester & Sons, Drugists. Trial bottles free. Regular size 50c and $1.

Today's Telegraphic News.

Japanese Surrounding Port Arthur.

Tokio, Nov. 21, 4 p. m.—A dispatch just received here announces that the Japanese undermined and occupied the counterscarp of Fort Erhlungshan on Saturday last. Fort Erhlungshan is one of the principal forts surrounding Port Arthur.

Rome, Nov. 21.—A dispatch to the Giornale from Mukden says there have been many attacks and counter attacks by the opposing forces during the past few days but without any result. In a sanguinary struggle on the Hun river, the Russians lost heavily. Continuing, the dispatch says that the Russians now have 270,000 men and 1,000 guns at the front and that the Japanese have 300,000 men and 1,800 guns. General Kuroki, commander of the Japanese right army, is in a new position farther north, and two bodies of Japanese troops have been detached on the wings of the army with the object of enveloping the Russians.

A message from Tokio states that Field Marshal Oyama has wired the government that his attempt to draw the Russians into a trap have been frustrated. The Japanese army is now excellently situated in fortified positions.

London, Nov. 21.—The correspondent of the Central News at the Shabke river, in a dispatch dated Charnia Mountains, says that after a night attack on the Russian front near Putiloff Hill, 83 dead Japanese were found on the battle ground. The last 24 hours, he says, have passed in quiet.

Tokio, Nov. 21.—A dispatch received today reports the capture of the German steamer Batelan while attempting to run the blockade at Port Arthur.

The Nan Patterson Trial.

New York, Nov. 21.—The outline of the people's case against Nan Patterson, the actress, charged with the killing of Frank Caesar Young, was presented to the jury today in the trial of the young woman before Judge Vernon Davis. Miss Patterson sat through the ordeal, with tense expression, while every now and then she convulsively clutched her father's hand when the prosecutor cut her to the quick with some stinging reference to her character.

Lewis Martin, the divorced husband of Miss Patterson, called upon her in the Tombs this morning, before the court opened, and cheered his former wife with comforting words. Martin was married to Miss Patterson when she was but 17 years old. They lived together only a year, when they were divorced. Miss Patterson, after the divorce, went upon the stage. She confesses today to 22 years. Prosecutor Rand concluded at 12:40 and a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

Wants to Make It Unanimous.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—Julius Brown, a son of the late Joseph M. Brown, Georgia's war governor, and also United States Senator for years, is out in a card proposing that the electors of all southern states vote for Roosevelt and make his election unanimous. He makes this proposition, because he says Roosevelt has been unjustly attacked on the negro question also on the Philippines, and in fact on all public questions. Brown says: "Now, I honestly believe, as a democrat, that the best thing for us the South, to do, is for Judge Parker and the democratic executive committee to request the southern electors to cast their votes for President Roosevelt, and make his election unanimous. He is a good man, half southern, and we of the South ought to be able to trust him."

Brewery Dynamited.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—Late last night a frame building owned by the Bohrer Brewing Company, of this city, at Stockwell, 12 miles east, was destroyed by dynamite. George J. Guntle, at the last meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, was refused a saloon license on a remonstrance questioning his fitness to sell liquor. An appeal was taken to the circuit court, the applicant granted a license and was to start the saloon today. When the inhabitants of the village were at church the explosion took place, tearing out the entire front of the building, the town is greatly excited.

Death from Starvation.

Madrid, Nov. 21.—Word reached here today of the tragic death of Guimeride Lazare, assistant cashier of the Galician Credit Bank of Corunna. Lazare, a week ago, absconded with notes valued at 200,000 pesetas. The police instituted a vigorous search for him, and his body has just been found 12 kilometers from Corunna, with the entire sum in his pockets. The doctors certified he had died of starvation, having taken refuge in the hills for a week, and kept there by fear of capture should he descend and use any of the money to buy food.

Islands Devastated by the Sea.

Amsterdam, Nov. 21.—A cable received today reports that the Talautz Islands, a group forming part of the East Indies, have been devastated by the overflowing of the sea. Thirty thousand inhabitants have been left destitute.

Bulgarian Revolutionists.

Vienna, Nov. 21.—Bulgarian revolutionists are terrorizing the Georgian district of Salonika. Recently they captured a Greek priest and burned his house.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Nov. 21, 11 a. m.—Strength continued to mark the stock speculation when the exchange resumed this morning. The standard railroad shares came into fresh prominence in the first hour. The general list made advances of good fractions. At the end of the first hour the moderate reaction was apparent in some moderate stocks, but there was no abatement in the under tone of strength and confidence possessed by the market.

Attack on Grand Duke's Carriage.

London, England, November 21.—The Rome correspondent of the Central News reports that while Grand Duke Cyril of Russia was being driven from the Arango to the Chinski station this morning some one threw a large stone, smashing the carriage window. The Grand Duke was not injured. The Grand Duke Cyril is in Italy in an effort to fully recover his health after his tragic experience aboard the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk in Port Arthur harbor. The Grand Duke was standing near Admiral Makarov when the battleship blew up. He was desperately wounded, but swam ashore. Makarov, it will be remembered, was killed.

Frank Sullivan and William R. Burnham, deafmutes of Troy, N. Y., were suffocated by illuminating gas yesterday about four o'clock in the Harmony Hotel, Cohoes. They went to the hotel Sunday morning about 3:30 o'clock, and registered under assumed names.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The Delmar Pavilion, a structure near the main entrance to the World's Fair grounds, was partly burned this evening.

Staunton Military Academy, in Augusta county, Va., was almost entirely destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $15,000.

Ryal E. Browning, who carries on business under the name of R. E. Browning & Co., brokers, at 51 Exchange Place, New York, today assigned.

General Palm Di Cesnola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, died in New York last night. He was born in Rivarolo, Piedmont, Italy, in 1832.

At Wyland, Pa., last night two sections of a cattle train came together on the Baltimore and Ohio road, and two drovers of New Concord, Ohio, were killed.

Fire which broke out in Asheville, N. C., last night resulted in a loss of between $75,000 and $100,000 which may be further swelled before the flames are brought under complete control.

Fire at the New York State building at the World's Fair at 2:40 this morning created a panic among the occupants, and came near suffocating several persons. The loss will amount to only a few hundred dollars.

M. H. Dale, a wealthy manufacturer of vitrified brick and one of the most prominent men in Scranton, Pa., nearly lost his life at the Lehigh Valley station at Buffalo, N. Y., last evening by jumping from a moving train. As Mr. Dale jumped, his coat caught on the rail, and he was thrown partially under the train. His left foot was crushed.

The unofficial returns from all precincts in Montana were completed last night, and show that Roosevelt received a plurality over Parker of 13,237. Dixon, republican, is re-elected to Congress over Gormley, democrat, by a plurality of 5,878. Governor Toole overcame the landslide for Roosevelt and he is re-elected over William Lindsay, republican, by a plurality of 7,945. The legislature is republican by a majority of eight on joint ballot, which insures the election of Thomas H. Carter as United States Senator.

A petition to have Alfred M. Lamar, a New York stock broker, adjudged an involuntary bankrupt, was filed today in the United States District Court of that city. Mr. Lamar's suspension was announced in the Consolidated Stock Exchange this morning.

Twelve Persons Met Death.

Smothered before they could reach the rear fire escape in a burning tenement building, at 186 Troutman street, in the Williamsburg district of Brooklyn, twelve people met death shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Two entire families, those of Mariano Triolo and Charles Polignio, are wiped out, the last living member of each being now in a hospital, with no hopes of their recovery. They are Charles Polignio, thirty-three years old, and Tony Triolo, thirteen years old, both of whom are terribly burned. The dead are: The mother and two small children of the Polignio family, Mariano Triolo, his wife, and three children; Marie Amrosio, and her eighteen-year-old daughter, Mary Galigoni, and Louisa Grossepiet, aged thirty. Although, in the opinion of the coroner, all the dead were suffocated, the bodies were badly burned before they could be taken from the ruins by the firemen. The burned tenement house is in the center of a row of three-story tenements extending the length of the block, and was occupied by Italians. The fire is supposed to have started in the cellar of the grocery store of Antonio Giambalvo, on the ground floor. The cellar was stored with inflammable material, and the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity. All the occupants were asleep at the time, and there was considerable delay in sending in the first alarm.

Raid on Gambling House.

After weeks of guarding gambling houses and social clubs the police of Norfolk last night made two raids on Sunday clubs, securing about sixty-five prisoners. For some time past the proprietors of fashionable gambling houses have openly defied the police and have invited them to raid their places. Officers detailed for the purpose have nightly visited the gambling houses, but did not make any arrests, only taking the names of those they found playing. Chief Boush Sunday week placed an officer on duty at the door of every gambling house to take the name of each patron entering and it is expected that these names will figure during the coming session of the Corporation Court when the evidence secured will be presented to the grand jury. Particular attention has also been paid to social clubs, and last night the National Club, in the heart of the business section of the city, was visited by a big squad of police, and twenty-three members were arrested. Later the Union League Club, in the colored residential section, was visited and forty-six patrons were taken into custody, one of them being a white man.

McCue's Appeal.

Forty-six bills of exceptions have been filed by counsel for J. Samuel McCue, of Charlottesville, sentenced to be hanged January 20, 1905, for wife murder. The appeal, if granted, will come before the Court of Appeals in Richmond, January 5.

The condemned man has his cell furnished with his Park street home, and his meals are sent by the occupants of his former residence. The officers of the law, while not making his confinement unnecessarily hard or cruel, are taking every precaution to insure his safekeeping. Men, heavily armed, guard his cell day and night.

The Races.

NEW B. E. PEAS just received by J. C. MILBURN

W. C. P. Breckinridge dead.

William Campbell Preston Breckinridge died in Lexington, Ky., Saturday night from a stroke of paralysis sustained Wednesday.

Col. Breckinridge has been a prominent figure in Kentucky politics and journalism for many years. One of the most able and prominent jurists in the South, and an editorial writer of brilliancy he was repeatedly sent to Congress from the Ashland district by the democrats until the unfortunate Madeline Pollard incident, which was the turning point in his career. His own party, seeing that his nomination would mean defeat, turned him down.

The Pollard-Breckinridge case ruined his career. After his conviction by the jury he appeared once or twice in the House, but he was shunned by everyone, and he remained away the rest of the session. Indeed, he never came back to Washington either in private or in public life. For many years he lived in obscurity. Once or twice he essayed to return to public life, but each time he was indignantly turned down by the men who in other years had worshipped him. Reports came from time to time to Washington that he was attempting to get the nomination for Congress, and, indeed, he once ran as an independent candidate, but he never succeeded.

Mr. Breckinridge was born in Baltimore August 28, 1837, in the parsonage of the Second Presbyterian Church, of which his father, Rev. Robert Jefferson Breckinridge, was pastor from 1832 to 1845.

$30,000 to Drop Her Suit.

Miss Edna Weller McClellan's suit against the estate of Charles Brown Rous, the late blind millionaire of New York, has been settled. The amount is more than $30,000, according to her mother. The suit was enforced payment to her of $35 a week as long as she shall live and for $2,700 due since Mr. Rous stopped the allowance. An agreement to pay this money dated June 16, 1900, was a part of the papers in the suit of McClellan, now a young woman of 21 years, was only 17 years old when, according to her story, she began to sing at Mr. Rous' home. Mr. Rous, to avoid a breach of promise suit, executed the agreement.
